

Addressing the Goals
4a Project Grant, Year 2
Ivan Fuller

Perhaps the closest match to one of the four overall goals as stated by the Faculty Development Grant is number two: "In what ways have we further explored our identity as a college? In what ways have we enriched the dialogue on vocation and the implications for learning?"

This proposal helped to deepen and enrich the types of educational opportunities given to Augustana students. In turn, such enrichment impacted the school's identity, particularly in its move toward greater diversity and international connectedness. The global nature of the proposal resulted in student participants who now have a richer understanding of their place in this world, an understanding which should certainly have great implications for their educational experience.
